Get noticed in the workplace

The first step to gaining a promotion is to get noticed. A good way to do this is to volunteer to assist in projects that may not be in your department.

Be a leader

Having a positive effect on those around you and inspiring colleagues to work at an effective level is a great trait to have.

Are you a problem-solver?

Every employer is on the lookout for someone who can solve situations in the workplace. Take initiative in these situations.

Ask for regular feedback

Obtaining regular feedback will show your supervisor you're eager to learn and develop.

Maintain a strong work ethic

Your work performance will show that you have mastered your current position and are ready for the next challenge.
